The complaint that we make against Mr. Parton is not that he labored to obtain information frost the domestic many persons ere going from this city to hunt these many persons ere going from this city to hunt the complaint that having mestics of Gen. Jackson, but that, hoving applied to a class notoriously and undemia-bly innocurate and unreliable for accounts of the private life and habits of the old hero, he should have assumed-without careful investigation and rigid scrutinythat the statements thus procured were truthful and worthy of belief.

The only explanation of Mr. Perton's action in this matter that suggests itself to our mind, ie, that he intended to give or practical illustration of his belief in the superiority of the black race, though we can but think in case the Commercial's correspondent is correct in his statement of Mrs. Jackson's assertion, that he would have consulted his reputation as a reliable biographer or historian, had he forborne so palpa la obtrusion of his peculiar political bins i a work claiming to be an impartial a d truthful history.

Presidency seeks to accomplish his own

We have often been amazed at the extent to which Radical newspapers preaumed upon the gullibility of the masse. The New York Tribune, in very nearly every issue, troats its readers to some in dent and unblushing falsehood of which almost rivals the celebrated fictions of Titus Oates and his co-conspirators and, as this sort of thing is repeated again and again, no room is left for doubth exists. Nor is the conduct of the Tribus at all exceptional. This, it must be con femend, is not very com limentary to the intelligence of our Northern brethren, for unless people are absolute dolts, it is im sle long to keep them in ignorance of the real situation. Mr Colfax holds pop ar intelligence in the same slight cutimu tion in which the leading journalists of his party hold it. He is clearly of their opinion that public sent ment is a piece of metal, and that any impression may be unped upon it that is deri-1. Mr. Colfax says in 1860 'm n dared t stand up in the South and denounce secon sion," but that they dare not do so now. Now what is the truth? So far as our observation extends, and we are sure ours is the experience of the entire Southern people, at the South as settled by the result of the war, is not now, and has at no time aince the cessation of hostil ties been, at issue of under consideration. ()nly in the effort of . Colfax and his pol tical friends to keep up the issues of the war thes seem sion now have any existence whatever We never see any discussion of it except in Radical editorials, and rarely hear anything about it save in the anenches of Radiman "denounces accession" at the South, It while to do so, since it is not held as a practical political doctrine by any party or set of men. Certainly It never ex bis associates to u ter so monstrous a false hood as that nobody dares to oppose it.

Equally true is Mr. Colfax's assertithat those who declare their devo 'n to the Union are in danger of that I es. If possible this is even a more monatrous fabrication than the first. When the Itad-ical candidate gave utterance to the statement he could not but he aware that ever day men are publicly "declaring their de votion to the Union" at the South, and the lives from so doing, but are heartily sympathized with by the people The Southpair. ern people desire nothing so ardently as the restoration of the old Union.
